

FUTURE OF SUSTAINABILITY
WORKSHOP
October 28 at the Gdańsk University of Technology

The recent Eurobarometer survey on European citizens attitudes towards the environment demonstrated that 67% of the Polish respondents believed companies and industries are not doing enough to protect the environment. In the same survey, a quarter of the respondents believed that providing more information is one of the most effective solutions for helping tackle environmental problems.

TOO4TO project, co-funded by the Erasmus+ Programme of the European Union, seeks to respond to this call for information. As part of the project results, the TOO4TO consortium is developing Dynamic Material Bank, which summarises and compiles the most recent and relevant information devoted to sustainability applicable in an organisational context in the EU and beyond. Dynamic Material Bank provides quick access to open-licence materials, summing up policies, projects, recommendations and a list of up-to-date sources for organisations across various industries and locations. It will provide information relevant to educational institutions and those developing and aligning their business practices with the EU-supported SDGs.

Gdańsk University of Technology invites you and your colleagues to the Future of Sustainability Workshop on October 28. We will discuss the current state of corporate sustainability and hear more about Dynamic Material Bank and how your organisation can take advantage of the free database and all the other results of the project.

The workshop is targeted chiefly to teachers/educators, business representatives and local government representatives. Participation in the workshop is free of charge but requires registration. Due to the limited capacity, this workshop is primarily targeted at those outside the Gdańsk University of Technology. The workshop will be held twice during the same day at 12:00 and 15:30.

Register for either one of the workshops here (deadline: 24.10.2021)
